I cannot teach anybody anything; I can only make them think - Socrates

Exploration of design pedagogies that facilitate this thinking, transcending into ideas. concepts that transition into forms, spaces & experiences at all levels of studio work. How can creativity be nurtured & streamlined to fructify into workable design solutions? Quality of design facilitation has to vary according to the studio level as well as the capacity of the student. The aim of the programme would be to equip design faculty with a clarity on options of pedagogy as a response to the level of the studio as well as the student group.

Objectives:

- Methods to motivate or inspire students to ideate.
- Awareness of the varying design pedagogies adopted globally.
- Differences in the methodology to be adopted at various studio levels.
- Concept – how to get clarity for students. Exploring thinking strategies.
- Transition of concept to architectural designs – successful methodologies & tools.
- Finalising of design – relevance of validations of various facets of building functions & services at different levels of studios.
- Importance & relevance of various graphical tools & techniques for presentation at the various levels of studio.
- Effective completion of studio projects.
- Honing of soft skills in students for effective presentations.
