VISION

Amid intense urbanization, shared resources, climate change concerns, and the necessity for resilient systems, the interconnectedness of habitat components becomes evident. Viewing private domains as extensions of public spaces and vice versa is crucial. Architects in academia and practice need to recognize the importance of Urban Commons in densely populated and resource-scarce human settlements. Embracing the significance of Urban Commons and understanding its various dimensions is vital for achieving Sustainable Development Goals and shaping responsive built environment

OBJECTIVES

To understand

- Significance of Urban Commons in habitat systems.
- Various dimensions of Urban Commons as a space typology.
- Tools to intervene within these common domains.
- Multiple stakeholders and their role in influencing the evolution of Commons.
- Translating this learning into academics and practice to generate responsible design approaches.

KEY TAKE-AWAYS FOR PARTICIPANTS

This training program aims to instill a holistic approach to the evolution of the built environment in both academia and industry. Participants will be sensitized to the intricacies of Urban Commons and informed about the interdependencies and consequences of interventions.

The program emphasizes the responsibility of architects as professionals in shaping the physical environment in the context of Commons. The program engages with knowledge-sharing among allied experts and hence provides a multi-disciplinary perspective for addressing habitat systems at different scales. The program recognises research opportunities for academia in the domain of Urban Commons and informs participants about the nature of architectural practice involving these shared resources.

Teachers/ architects who wish to register for the training program either under Collaborative Training Program (CTP 2022-23) or as independent individuals may do so by filling up the Google form available on the given link.

To confirm registration, kindly upload proof of payment towards the registration fees /nomination form on college letterhead before submitting the registration form.

Link to join the program will be shared one day prior to the program. This program is not for students.

E-Certificate of said training program shall be sent via email on registered e-mail id of participants, after successful completion of training program by participant i.e. attending all sessions and submitting all assignments, EOPT and feedback form of training program.
